

ERP That Integrates

Shop Floor with Front Office.

If an enterprise is a living organism, the flow of information is its central nervous system, informing decisions and dictating movements. A plant lacking enterprise-wide ERP integration experiences debilitating restrictions in the amount and quality of data streaming between the shop floor and front office. As a result, the left hand often doesn't know what the right hand is doing.

CMSm5 removes the obstacles to information sharing. With CMSm5 integrated deeply and seamlessly across all critical business functions, essential data is organically shared throughout the enterprise. Managers in the front office and their counterparts on the shop floor enjoy real-time visibility to all the data they'll need to make better and more fully informed decisions.
